The vacant positions of Captains, Lieutenants and non-Commissioned officers, will be filled by vote of your respective companies from the enrolled men. Field and Staff officers will be appointed by ballot: election of the Battalion or Regiment after the rendezvous.

Owing to the low condition of finances of the Territory I would counsel you to incur no expense except for advertising which will be assumed by this Office, and enrollment lists which will be furnished by the Adjutant General of the Territory, when you signify your willingness to comply with the above requirements.

Appeal to the People

To

The Business Men of Denver and to the Territory generally.

Two Hundred patriotic soldiers stand ready to enter the service of the Territory or the General Government to go on a campaign against the Indians now menacing our settlements. Transportation and rations have already been supplied; but thus far no animals are forthcoming on which to mount these men. I appeal to you for support in this emergency.

A proposition from Capt Shafferberg was received late on Saturday night, and pursuant to notice heretofore given, was accepted by me at 11 o'clk to day — for three hundred horses equipped complete at one hundred and fifty seven dollars per head, subject to inspection.

Doubt as to time and manner of payment caused the Capt to reconsider his proposition. I am left therefore with this resort only, to ask if you who have the preservation of lives, the property of our citizens, and the safety of Over-land trade at heart, will come forward and indemnify parties against loss, who have the horses to spare.

As the Executive of the Territory I pledge you I will do all — everything — in my power to forward the enterprise which seems so much to be needed save making myself individually liable, or rendering myself ridiculous by transcending my authority.

Governor's Message.

Delivered to the Legislative Assembly in Joint Session at Golden City, Dec 6th 1865.

Gentlemen of the Council and House of Representatives of the Territory of Colorado.

In all, I have made it my duty to assume the office and address you in the name of the Chief Executive of this meeting of the Seventh Session of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Colorado.

In this, the most important convention, of any Assembly Body since the organization of the Territory. With the rapid growth of our communities in wealth and population during the past year, many new and more enlarged duties to [illegible] will [illegible]

Pacific Railroad, the consideration and performance of which I request your earnest and earnest cooperation.
The most important consideration affecting the welfare of our territories is that of mining, lands, roads and safe communication with the great centres of wealth and population on the Pacific, from which we draw our supplies, and the necessaries of life, and upon which it is to mine the capital and labor for the development of the varied resources of this country
We now receive these supplies, via Panama, at an increased cost upon the Missouri River, a distance of more than six hundred miles, exposed during the greater part of the journey to the depredations and murderous attacks of the savages, the transportation of which would have been fatal to the prosperity existence of the Territories, had our people been left destitute of our resources. The abundant harvests of Nevada are also reported in a steady increase of wealth and population which will require cheap and advantageous circumstances.
The completion of the Union Pacific Railroad to a point
one hundred and ten miles west of our commercial center, has by a reduction of wagon transportation to that distance and the removal of danger from attacks of hostile Indians, materially lightened the burden of existence and maintain communication with the base of supplies, but relief cannot be afforded upon this auspicious event. I would commend to your consideration the subject of further relief by actual connection by rail between the mining regions via Golden and Denver Cities and the above mentioned roads, and also with the Eastern Division Railway which has reached a point two hundred and fifty miles east of this city.
The Union Pacific Road having the grand trunk which is to unite the eastern and western borders of our country has reached the base of the Rocky Mountains five hundred and twenty miles from its initial point. Extending eastward from the city of San Francisco to meet this main thoroughfare is the Central Pacific Railroad Company which has already reached the Sierra Nevada Range which is advancing with unprecedented rapidity. That California will soon be ready to rejoice at the completion of a ground communication to Washington over which will pass from the Head quarters of Commerce all nations to its point of distribution at the City of New York, quickening the pulse of trade and giving to the Americas people the commercial and monetary supremacy of the civilized world.
The Eastern Division [illegible]

can be fulfilled to connect with the principal line at a point not more than fifty miles west of the meridian of Denver; but it is believed that the company building it propose to obtain from the present Congress a change in its charter and subsidy of land and money for the purpose of deflecting to the southward and making a trunk road to the Pacific by way of Santa Fe and California.

Assuming this Division will be as deflected from its chartered course, Colorado will continue to suffer from the delays and increased expenses of wagon transportation for all foreign supplies. And isolated like an island in mid ocean will see the commerce of nations sweep by while her shores are untouched. To prevent this isolation and to place ourselves within the great current of trade which is to flow across the continent enriching all within its influence and which would give to Colorado a prosperity greater than her most sanguine friends have foretold, should command our united energies. We must have no local jealousies or divided counsels.

Our citizens are manifesting unusual at the present time its construct these branch railways, so indispensible to the development of the Territory, and therefore recommend the adoption of a joint Memorial to Congress asking that a subsidy of lands and money be granted by the general government to accomplish their completion. Such a subsidy would be simply a loan which would be more than repaid in a few weeks by the greater revenue derived from our stimulated industries, and most certainly would not equal the expensive military occupation and defense, of which the construction of these roads would obviate the necessity.

Mining, our great industry, the foundation upon which rests our whole business prosperity, has during the past year yielded to well directed labor most satisfactory returns. This encouraging result is partly due to a vigorous working of long abandoned lodes and placers, to the exclusion of the exciting search for new mines, which in former years so generally diverted the efforts of the miner by the alluring hope of sudden wealth, but mainly to the introduction of new machinery and methods adapted to the proper treatment of [illegible]

Records seem to embrace all the chemical and mechanical appliances necessary for the certain and economical extraction of the precious metals from their matrices, having given under sufficiently practical tests with all varieties of ores the most gratifying results. We may confidently look forward to a period in the not very remote future, when we shall be able to obtain gold, silver and copper from the abundant materials in which our mountains abound, to an extent practically limited only by the amount of machinery and capital employed for those purposes.

The discovery and partial development of numerous and surprisingly rich silver mines in the vicinity of Georgetown in Clear Creek County, during the past year offers a fresh guarantee of a diversity of labor and increased production of wealth in the brightening future. Under the act of Congress approved July 26th 1866, the mineral lands of the United States, surveyed and unsurveyed, are laid open to pre-emption and occupation - pursuant to certain prescribed regulations - by citizens of the United States and those who have declared their intention to become such. Since the passage of this act a multitude of applications for government titles to mines have been filed in the Land office at Denver, but the Surveyor General having found no one until a very recent date who would accept the contract to establish Meridian lines within the Mining Districts, owing to the inadequate pay allowed by law for such services, but one final survey has been made. This first location by the filing of an adverse claim, under the provisions of section six of the Supplemental Act, which authorizes parties having adverse claims to file them at any time prior to the approval of the survey has been duly prepared by the agents of the general government and forwarded to the Interior Department to be submitted as a test case, demanding such adjudication as will establish a reliable precedent for the guidance of future decisions. This proceeding will necessarily suggest the thorough investigation of beneficial amendments to the law which as it now stands is practically inoperative in such cases. When there are no adverse claims its provisions is ordinarily complete but where [illegible] exist, arising from inaccurate surveys, multiplicity of local titles or the causes before stated, the law does not clearly delegate to any established tribunal the power to adjust them, or if it does its meaning is so obscure as to obstruct most effectually every step taken to the permanent and definite establishment of the rights of parties litigant. The case now pending will doubtless develop the hidden construction which is to determine future action.

General Cassin has kindly furnished me with the following account of surveys made to facilitate locations under the act referred to.

The first correction line south has been run from the base of the mountains near Bradford west eighteen miles. The second correction line south extends from a point on the Divide near the heads waters of Plum and Monument Creeks at the foot of the mountains west through the South Park to a point on the Arkansas River about two miles north of the Twin Lakes. The line passes about twelve miles north of Hardscrabble Works in Park County, and six miles south of Fairplay. The 6th guide meridian has been run from the second correction line south, from a point on the eastern border of the South Park, north, to a point twelve miles north of the baseline. The latter passing about one half mile east of Idaho. Through the Briggs mill between Central and Black Hawk to South Boulder and Columbia City. The baseline is also extended one and a half miles beyond Blue River. The exterior lines of township 3 South, range 3 west, are established taking in the lands and mining claims to a point six miles above Idaho. The surveyor general has authorized the survey of mineral lands lying within three miles of any of these lines. Within the limits described are embraced nearly all the mining districts of Boulder, Gilpin and Clear Creek counties. Empire and Georgetown, though now excluded, will receive early attention, the townships in which they are located, be defined, and the people enabled to assume their legal prerogative as in other jurisdictions covered by congressional statute.

During the year, the various interests of Colorado have been admirably represented at the Universal Exposition in Paris, in the fall of 1866 [illegible] collection of minerals was made for this purpose by Geo W Maynard Esq. who was subsequently appointed Geo. vitorial Commissioner; but events transpiring shortly afterward to prevent his contemplated tour through Europe. J P Whitney, a gentleman of fine attainments and possessing a thorough practical knowledge of our country was appointed to the vacancy. Having a magnificent cabinet of specimens, some 3000 in number, many of them new to the science of Mineralogy, gathered for private use. They were added to the Territorial collection and with them exhibited to the world at Paris. Maps illus= trating the topography of our mountains and valleys, photographic and pencil sketches showing their prominent characteristics, decorated the quarter devoted to this use, so that the stranger might gather at a glance a correct and com= prehensive view of the region represented. Pamphlets set= ting forth a statistical review of our varied resources, ag= ricultural as well as mineral were published in three lan= guages, English, French and German, which ultimate= ly became widely distributed among the scientific and industrial classes of Europe. As the result of this whole= sale advertising we have:

1st The first Grand Medal awarded to minerals.

2nd " The appointment of an Imperial Commissioner who has visited the Territory, and reported his ob= servations therein, for the benefit of capital and science in France.

3rd " The selection of an agent by the German Emi= grant Aid Society of Prussia to visit and investigate the advantages offered by Colorado for the early col= onization of a large number of Germans.

4th " The diffusion throughout Europe of such use= ful knowledge as will have a direct tendency to invite the industrials classes of all nations to make new homes among our people.

It is impossible to overestimate the value of the service rendered the Territory through the indefatigable energy of Commissioner Whitney. His return in October last was hailed with universal manifestations of appreciation and esteem. When we consider all that has been accom= plished by his almost unaided efforts, at great personal sacrifice and a large number of expense in which we have no share, the inestimable results likely to accrue in [illegible]

eminently proper for this assembly to deliberate upon & enact fitting testimonials of the estimation in which this service is held; & would therefore suggest the adoption of a series of complimentary resolutions explanatory the same, a copy of which engrossed on parchment to be presented Mr Whitney in the name of this Communwealth.

Throughout consequence of distruction in blows from grasshoppers, the crops of the present year some not equaled those of the previous year yet more than sufficient of all kinds of produce has been gathered to supply every want. This may be regarded as another demonstration of the gratifying fact that Colorado is equal, even in the most adverse seasons, to the production of ample subsistence for her population.
The fact that farmers have readily adapted themselves to the system of irrigation demanded by the penul-iar climate and soils, the abundance of water which can easily and without great expense be made to flow over and enrich these beautiful valleys, and the vast area of fertile country susceptible of irrigation, assures the ability to subsist from internal resources alone even the population which the full development of the mining regions will eventually attract within our borders.

The Territorial Agricultural Society incorporated in 1865, has thus far been conducted under the most gratifying auspices, expanding its sphere of usefulness with the growing interest it was formed to promote.
Its second annual exhibition in October elicited the most flattering commendation from strangers present, while the uniform excellence of the products displayed, challenged competition from any section of the Great West.

Through the kindness of E. Holmes Esq Register of the Land Office I am enabled to incorporate the following exhibit of lands filed for the purpose of actual settlement within the year ending Oct 31st 1864:

Under Military Bounty Land Warrants	86,3[illegible] 65-/14 Acres
Cash Series Act 4th Sept 1841	10,022 78-/47 "
Homestead Act May 20. 1862	11,057 05-/00 "
Total No of Acres taken up for actual settlement	54 467 21-/00 "
No of Acres filed upon under Act of 4th Sept 1841	13,000 "

The necessity for the immediate organization of a Bureau of Statistics is becoming more & more [illegible] condition by the Spark & Shawnee received in my official character a large number of communications addressed from various quarters of the United States making inquiries in regard to the soil, climate, present and projected Railroads, productions, society and general prospects of the Territory; the writers being actuated by a desire to establish permanent homes here, and avail themselves of the advantages presented by the rising development of a new and prosperous country. That such immigration is needed to assist in projecting the enterprise which we have a few years since initiated in the desolation and solitude of the wilderness and have already brought to such a gratifying stage of progression cannot be controverted; nor can the apprehension be disguised that without the aid of this latent auxiliary we must eventually languish if not entirely fail to consummate the glorious mission we came to fulfill. Various agencies have combined to draw from us a large portion of the laboring class upon which we are mainly dependent for the cultivation of the broad acres of fertile lands which surround us, and the enlargement of mining operations. Measures for the remuneration of our overtaxed energies through foreign channels should receive earnest attention. Statistics should be collected, printed, and scattered broadcast over the land, showing our incomparable resources, and inviting to our friendly soil the industrial classes of every quarter of the globe. Let the advantages which our Territory affords to those seeking new homes be more generally known, and a tide of immigration will speedily flow hither that would place Kansas on a footing of equality with a majority of the older states, members of the Federal Union.

The Indian question, many [illegible] be regarded as one that is no longer capable of seriously disturbing our domestic tranquility. The peace commission, of whose movements ample notice has been afforded by the press, have succeeded in negotiating treaties with the various hostile tribes which mainly bear them beyond immediate contact with present or projected thoroughfares. The boundaries established for the Kickapoos and Comanches, embrace the tract of country which begins on the intersection of the thirty-fifth parallel of the north fork of Red River; thence down the same to the main stream of that name, and along the same to the [illegible]

of mining, covering an area of nearly six thousand square miles. It is stipulated that in lieu of the annuities formerly provided by the government, the Indians shall biennially receive supplies of clothing commensurate with and suited to their wants, and in addition to the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, to be expended yearly by the Interior Department, for such other necessary articles as may be demanded by their new condition. Efforts will be made to induce these and other tribes treated with to adopt agricultural pursuits and gradually abandon their nomadic habits. They agree to interpose no obstruction to the advancement of the several railroad lines, and to preserve a lasting peace.

The Cheyennes and Arapahoes have been made the objects of especial care, they being removed as far as possible from Colorado influences. "Because" says Senator Henderson "the people of that Territory seem so much excited and embittered against them". The district selected for these bands is located south of and bordered by the Arkansas River extending north to the Kansas border and south to the Canadian, comprising a magnificent section of nine thousand square miles within which there are no considerable settlements. Like the Kiowas and Comanches, they agree to withdraw their opposition to emigrants, settlers and the lines of railroads, submitting peacefully to the new regulations prescribed for them, with the single exception of the right to hunt game over a much wider range of country than that designated as their grant. A few other bands enumerated as members of the warlike confederation, have been similarly disposed of by their retirement to ample reservations removed from present routs of travel. While doubt exists in the minds of western men, particularly in Colorado, whose citizens have suffered most severely from the murderous incursions of these tribes, as to the permanency of these wholesome arrangements, all will rejoice at the prospect of peace, after a most continuous warfare of three years duration. Whether these treaties are observed forever or violated within a year, will make little difference with our commercial interests, because the Union Pacific Railroads which can and will be protected against all danger and obstruction[illegible] to us as a means of communication with our base of supplies.

In this connection it is proper to advert to the Ute nation whose friendship and uniform good conduct is a subject for universal congratulation, and showed commend these worthy people to the favorable consideration of the parent government. During the bloody conflict that has raged with the tribes of the Plains, they have steadily maintained their allegiance to treaty stipulations. They have mingled freely with our citizens, without the slightest collision, until they have come to be regarded not only as friends but allies, and their necessities cheerfully relieved by private contributions.

But something more is necessary. The general government while caring for those whose record is written in the blood of our people, should certainly extend its beneficent offices to those who are manifestly entitled to the first place in its confidence. Through the occupancy of their lands by the white settlers, all opportunity for self maintainance by the only means they know how to employ is sacrificed leaving them greatly dependent upon charity for support. Life annuities similar in extent to those granted the other bands referred to, should be provided by Congress, and their distribution regularly and honestly made. The Utes are now in condition to receive instruction properly tendered, in the ways of civilization. Agencies established among them, upon reservations wisely chosen for their adaptation to agricultural and pastoral pursuits, and Missionaries appointed to teach them these new duties, would. I am convinced be followed by immediate good results.

The laws of our Territory through a necessity incident to all growing communities, have received many important amendments, since the first session of the Legislative Assembly. These amendments distributed through the legislation of all succeeding years, make our statutes in their present form, an embarrassment even to the legal profession, while to the people at large they are almost a sealed book. To effect a judicious compilation of them would entail but a trifling expense, and render to all classes an essential service. In anticipation of such action being taken by the [illegible] view of the fact that a period of two years must elapse before such a work could be performed and submitted to her approval, which would only augment the difficulty now complained of, a method for the alleviation of which in submitting a postponement was been adopted by the legal fraternity and carried into effect by Col. E. F. Wells, and attorney of acknowledged ability who has made a thorough compilation of the statutes to which your attention will be called at an early day. The labor has been long and arduous - the expense a material consideration — and the work has been done in a manner to meet the unqualified approval of the supreme judges whose certificate it bears. While I believe that a comprehensive codification would be more acceptable, the points to which I have alluded, will remove the principal obstructions to a general and correct knowledge of our laws, and afford a safe and intelligible basis upon which to erect a more elaborate structure when demanded.

For various reasons it is desirable that the organization, whether partial or complete, of each County throughout the Territory, should be known to the Executive Department. The Election Returns on file in the Secretary's Office, cannot be relied upon for such information, for the reason that a large number of County officers elected, fail to execute their bond's and qualify within the time prescribed by law, thus creating many vacancies to be supplied by the Commissioners. Many of the County Clerks have neglected to forward the election returns for local officers, from the fact that, in their judgment, no practical advantage could be derived from it, and for the reasons before given, no special effort has been made to obtain them. Being often called upon to authenticate, for use in foreign countries, and in the United States, the signatures and official acts of such officers, and possessing no accurate knowledge of the same, I caused the several County Clerks to be furnished ~~with~~ some weeks previous to the last general election, with printed blanks designed when properly filled, to exhibit the signature, date of commencement, and expiration of term of office, and post office address of each official thereby a conformity to these views based upon the subject— Many being under no legal obligation so to do — have failed to return these lists in the form requested. The information thus sought, which is essential to public convenience, necessary to the validity of transfers of property, the delegation of important trusts and the facilitation of much official business having been withheld, I recommend to your honorable body such an amendment to the general election law as will meet the exigency.

While discussing affairs relative to county organizations it is well to consider the question long agitated but never decided bearing upon the matter of revenue in such counties as have Assessors but Sheriffs and Treasurers Collectors. The Auditor's and Treasurers Reports exhibit from year to year the mortifying fact that a number of counties have failed to contribute their proportionate share towards the maintainance of the public burden, thereby enjoying all the privileges of representation and protection under the laws, granted to those whose revenue is promptly and regularly paid. The excuse has been that having no local organization no officers had been appointed to levy assessments and collect taxes, hence none had been returned. It is not only unwise but positively unjust to the great mass of taxpayers to permit the further continuance of this ruinous policy. The counties referred to are as prosperous with their internal affairs than those which occupy a more central position. Their lands produce abundantly, labor is far less expensive than in the eastern or northern border, and ample markets are provided for the disposal of all they may produce, at rates profitable to the producer.

An Amendment to the revenue law is called for by these circumstances which will provide for the appointment of territorial officers whose duty it shall be to levy assessments and gather the territorial tax from such counties as have neglected to make provision for discharging their portion of the general expenses.

It is evident that further legislation is required for the prevention of election frauds. So much importance cannot be attached to the purity of the ballot box, so much care taken for its preservation. Without essential safeguards popular elections become a farce and republican government a fable. The duty [illegible] to the statesman and the dearest interests of the people are sacrificed to the promotion of partizan ends and personal aggrandizement. It is reasonable to conclude that the charges of fraud, so freely preferred at each succeeding election, are not entirely without foundation. Under present statutory regulations, fraudulent votes may be deposited notwithstanding the exercise of the utmost vigilence of the election boards, and it is literally impossible to correct the wrong thus perpetrated. Any attempting to eliminate the illegal from the legal vote, because one class is indistinguishable from the other. Rejecting returns in toto, as has in a few instances been done, is to say the least a harsh remedy, for upon thereby disfranchise legal voters, and punish the many for the faults of the few. Good citizens should not thus be deprived of the most valuable prerogative of American citizenship. A registry law similar in its provisions to those successfully operated in many of the States, has been suggested as a cure for this rapidly growing evil. While the efficiency of such a law has hardly been questioned, doubts have been expressed as to its immediate practicability. It has been objected with much force, that the system proposed is too intricate and expensive for satisfactory application in our sparsely populated Territory. This argument prevailed and resulted the enactment, in the session of '65 of the present registry laws. We are now called upon to take the broadest possible view of this question. The official declarations of the results of subsequent elections, have been seriously questioned, and in some instances appeals taken therefrom to tribunals of last resort, and, there is a very generally expressed desire, that such legislative action may be had as will if possible place the regularity of future elections beyond the power of contravention. This subject recommends itself to careful investigation as a matter of vital importance, the consideration of a free and order loving people. Good citizens must be protected in the exercise of the elective franchise, and the evils disposed [illegible] from overcoming this right by fraudulent or [illegible] agencies in the same direction.

"The recent amendment to the Organic act, providing that hereafter the sessions of the Legislature shall occur bill, necessitate radical modifications of the law regulating general elections, and requiring annual reports of certain Territorial officers entrusted with the collection and disbursement of the public revenue, be submitted to the Legislative Assembly while in session. Since it will hereafter be impossible for such officers to comply with former custom in this regard it is proper to devise measures which will satisfy the public demands for annual exhibits. We therefore suggest that at the close of each alternate year intervening between the sessions, such reports shall be made to the Executive, who shall cause the same to be published in one or more newspapers having the largest general circulation, so that the people may be officially advised each year of all matters pertaining to the organization of the militia, the public schools and the condition of the finances.

The partial abridgement of mails facilities is a question full of interest to every inhabitant. The law of Congress enacted in 1866, which has to this day deprived us of a large share of periodical literature, was inflicted upon us through the influence of mail contractors, to whom we are indebted for other and even more serious deprivations. If at any time a cause existed for the interposition of Congress to prevent abuses in the overland mail system, that cause is now wholly removed, and there can be no occasion for its further continuance. Congress should be vigorously memorialized upon this subject, and our Delegate instructed to use his utmost endeavors to relieve this people from the odious law that has so long been a measure of oppression.

There has been considerable discussion through the press and elsewhere in reference to the establishment of a new Territory with its seat of government located at Cheyenne the present western terminus of the Pacific Railroad. The removal of so much of the population only in the region west of the Rocky Mountains, whereby a complete solitude is transformed as if by magic into a populous city, replete with all the appliances of a progressive civilization has been again illustrated, at a point but a few miles removed from the northern boundary of our Territory. Within the short space of four months a vigorous town has grown from an unfrequented waste to a population estimated, [illegible]

Coincidence with the aspiration referred to that Augusta may be of the future which is so characteristic of American growth, the expectation of a speedy establishment of railroad communication, which led to its definite action in the election of a Delegate to Congress, who has been sent to Washington to watch its adoption by the General Legislature. Whether any incidental allusion to this fact should be misunderstood at this time it must rest with the result of the favorable consideration by Congress of the proposition in question. There is reason to be apprehended that an important portion of Colorado will be appropriated to form a part of the area of the proposed Territory. In negotiations of all kinds with the surrounding Tribes, the rights and prosperity of our common country, and feeling an especial interest in that so near at hand; the undersigned could with approval to citizens in every respect to the extent contemplated by the aspiring neighborhood. The benefits to be derived from the disarrangement would be measured by the injury just proportion as it succeed, the officials to whom it should be injurious etc. The necessity of an immediate organization of another Territory is to say the least, somewhat problematical, especially when it must necessarily involve serious injury to the already organized and prepared for admission as a state. Colorado has labored from its first settlement against innumerable adversities, but never that portrayed a permanent injury to the whole people as does this. The subject is brought to your notice not because the danger is imminent, but in order that you may be prepared to check and dispel by wise measures if inaugurated, during your present session.

"We want each of Congress throughout the Territories, practically equal rights, throughout the provisions of our local statutes defining the qualifications of voters and jurors. It is not my part except this time to discuss the wisdom or propriety of this measure. Such discussion could in no way affect the result. The question has met with no opposition in the several municipal and County elections, where prejudice and principle have been [illegible] the former being lost to [illegible] the [illegible] presence of the latter. The ordeal through which the people of the latter have been [illegible] has been universally acknowledged, deservedly so, one of the inevitable results of a great political revolution. All loyal citizens are entitled to look to their legal guardians in the nation=al hall, the Parliament, for legislative acts with those of the general Government.

The annual report of the Adjutant General is submitted herewith. The exhibit therein is a subject which calls for more than ordinary attention from a numerous body, which is made up largely the element in=tricacies of organization which prevails in this depart=ment. The importance of an efficient militia law to an=swer the standard which, though ordinarily inoperative [illegible] nevertheless, are still in force, need not be recited. The proceedings of this Legislature, under this law, which transpired during the summer, when furnished will be made the subject of a special message.

All moneys respectfully appropriated have been made by the Executive with a view to information respecting the disposition made of our Territorial claims against the United States Government for the services of militia in the years 1861-65; nothing definite has yet been elicited. Although private sources present, I learn that the accounts by which a full history will be secured in the Adjutant General's Report have been submitted and examined, the main [illegible] has been [illegible] the War Department upon the principle [illegible] which other similar claims are to be settled. Upon your present action will be forthwith transmitted [illegible] that the Report of Adjutant [illegible] early [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of the Civil War History prepared in 1866, was neither [illegible] submitted to the Legis=lature [illegible] published, as required by law, though [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] It is to be hoped that this Assembly will [illegible] the re=quisite [illegible] for its incorporation with the annual reports.

annual, and unable to resist the pressure, especially since new Legislature elected to replace a portion of this last address to its discussion. Four years ago this winter was elected which petitioned Congress for an enabling act as a preliminary step to the organization of Nevada as a State. Pursuant thereto a constitutional convention was called, a constitution framed, submitted to the people and rejected. The following Spring the rebellion closed, returning to their homes in the Territory, our soldiers which the war had called to the field. After universal discussion it was decided to attempt a second organization of the State forces, and accordingly another convention was called and a more acceptable constitution framed. On being submitted to the people it was ratified by a majority of 155. The election of state officers followed, succeeded in due time by the selection of two senators to represent the new State in the two Senate branches of the National legislature. The bill for admission twice passed both Houses of Congress and was twice vetoed by the President. A third bill was introduced which is now pending. The principal argument urged against the measure by the disaffected of the Parties was the inadequacy of population. During the [illegible] of 1865, a census bill was passed, and the census taken, which resulted in placing the number of resident inhabitants at 11[illegible] from 30,000. Many unprejudiced minds declared at once against this unquestionably false return, but its object had already gone abroad to tell the world that Nevada was being depopulated, and would soon become a mere blank upon the broad map of the nation. The result is well known and need not therefore be recapitulated. That our numbers have largely increased during the year is incontrovertible. In our evidence of this fact I need only point to the returns of the last Presidential election held in August when by one name estimating five persons to each voter, a population [illegible] was

It seems proper to allow this persistent effort to achieve state sovereignty, running through four years to fail at last, leaving us in the Territorial condition with no influence in national affairs, and but little in ourselves, would be but little helpful to every material interest. What may be called the Rocky Mountain system of railroads, has sufficiently developed itself to show, that without a voice in the Government at Washington, we are to be deprived of all benefits arising from its inauguration and completion. These events of the last twelve months to which reference is unnecessary, fully establish this view of the question. We find that even in the matter of connection with one or both of the great lines of railway, we have nothing but our own resources, unaided by public Land grants as in new states to encourage the enterprise. The advantages accruing from the construction of one such line of connection with the East, would, I venture to say, outweigh ten fold the additional taxation requisite for the support of state government.

By virtue of the act of congress approved January 22. 1864, the net proceeds of the internal revenue of this Territory to an amount not exceeding forty thousand dollars, is set aside and appropriated to and for the purpose of erecting, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior a penitentiary building. All moneys or appropriations thus received from the Interior Department with reference to the preliminary steps which are to insure the early completion of work upon this very necessary public edifice, it is safe to conclude that the location of a suitable site by your assembly would be eminently proper. It is hoped that a central position may be chosen in order that all parts of the Territory may be accommodated in its use.

The reports of the Auditor, Treasurer, Superintendent of Public Instruction, which are herewith, will show the condition of the public schools and the general financial standing of the Territory. The subjects for legislation enumerated in the foregoing pages, are committed to your care as the faithful guardians of the public weal. I trust the relations between the

Hon. W. E. Daugherin
Speaker of the House of Representatives

Sir:

I have the honor to direct the attention of your Honorable Body to the recently published series of very able and elaborate Reports from the various Territorial Departments and to suggest that a careful perusal of them may cause each and every Member, in order that the palpable defects in present statutes therein represented may be remedied by judicious legislation.

In view of the fact that frequent inquiries in relation to the settlement of our claims against the General Government for the services of our Militia have been heretofore had by this Department, & since our duty is to be governed thereby in making this or other like settlements and the consistent payment of early payment has been one of the arguments of the Territory, I feel it is eminently proper to express the favorable opinion that a suitable distribution of this money to the several funds recommended in said Report, especially as no receipt of notice from the Treasury Department of the United States that payment has been ordered. In this course a large amount of interest annually accruing upon the bonded debt of this Territory would be saved, which should be of great importance to the people. The public interest demands that the interest care be observed in the preparation of this bill.

I would invite special attention to the Report of the Adjutant Generals which plainly indicates the absolute necessity of a more intelligible & more efficient Military law, and the thorough reorganization of Military affairs throughout this jurisdiction. The closing paragraph of the Auditors Report, requiring an estimate of expenses incurred on account of the Militia mustered into service in June last by order of Governor Hunt for which Certificates of service have been issued, but there being are entitled to accept the claims are still unadjusted. They should be met by the requisite appropriation.

Under the provision for the continued healthful growth of our Territorial Library, shown in the forthcoming report of your Committee, on Ways and Means, the present Law of Congress compelling payment of letter postage upon all transient printed matter transmitted through the mails to this Territory, necessarily deprives this most useful institution of many valuable books which would otherwise be furnished from the annual Reports of the different States of the Union. The postage on which rates have changed, very frequently exceed the original cost of the works so transported. I would therefore suggest that a special contingent appropriation of five hundred dollars be set apart from the yearly appropriations to meet the requirements of this Department in the cause above stated.

Veto Message

Denver Jany 9th 1868

Hon C. H. Chenoweth
Speaker House Representatives

Sir;

I return herewith without official sanction "An act to dissolve the bonds of matrimony between William C. Sears and Sarah Francis Sears" with my objections to its becoming a law.

On examination of the Statutes Revised of Colorado Territory, from the earliest period of its organization down to the present Session will elicit no case in which the Legislative Assembly upon mature deliberation has assumed the sacred Legal Prerogative belonging to the Courts of Justice alone; and established itself a Special tribunal for the adjudication of civil causes. Even before the law concerning Divorces" Approved November 7th 1861 was enacted, it became a question with the Assembly then in session as to its jurisdiction over such cases, to ascertain the truth of which a select committee composed of three legal gentlemen was appointed, who after patient and exhaustive investigation declared unanimously against the assumption. On the contrary however the several coördinate branches of the government have steadily maintained that all cases of this nature were clearly and exclusively within the jurisdiction of the established Courts whose province it is to hear the full burden of testimony pro and con and determine the rights of each case in accordance therewith.

A volume of instances might be cited to sustain this position, but I think at this late day of your session, I find no time to discuss, nor do I recognize it as being necessary to do more than appeal in the briefest manner to the wiser judgment of the Members composing the House of Representatives for justification of my action.

Aside from the considerations already presented there is the one of precedent, which it seems to me is unanswerable and will not be disregarded. Of the fact become heralded throughout the Territory that matrimonial Communion may be obtained of the Legislative Assembly without trial and without price and a multitude of petitions will follow the announcement, concerning the valuable time which legitimately belongs to more important subjects of legislation, demoralizing the very foundations of our social organization and reflecting discredit upon the self constituted tribunal which considered them.

The Act of 1851 "Concerning Divorces and Alimony" is sufficiently plain, liberal and comprehensive in its provisions to afford protection to all aggrieved parties in need of its good offices. If the Complainant be poor and manifestly unable to defray the expenses of a suit in Court the law provides that it shall be conducted gratuitously. I see nothing in the case now before me to exempt it from the practical operation of this statute and therefore return it without my approval.

Grant Hall
Acting Governor

Executive Department
Colorado Territory
Denver April 15th 1869

To the Sheriff of Douglas County Sir:

It has come to my knowledge that certain citizens of Douglas County in violation of the laws of the Territory, have assumed the right to oppose by force of arms and otherwise the peaceful conduct through our Territory of sundry Droves of "Texas Cattle", and that they have dispersed and scattered said herds of cattle and persistently opposed their collection by their owners who are desirous of speedily removing them from our Territorial jurisdiction.

The Statutes declare that it shall not be lawful for any person to import into the Territory of Colorado any cattle known as "Texas Cattle" and provide severe penalties for all infractions of this regulation; but there is no provision which will justify the People of Douglas County in taking forcible prosecution of such Cattle or in maltreating those in charge of them.

If any man has violated the law by bringing them into the Country, he should be arrested, taken before the established Courts and on conviction punished as the law directs.

I call your attention to these facts and trust that you will at once proceed to exercise the duties of your high office for the prevention of further outrages, and for the rigid enforcement of law and order throughout the County.

Respectfully Yours
Frank Hall
Acting Governor of Colo. Terr.

Executive Department

Denver April 15th 1869

To the People of Douglas County!

Whereas it has been made known to me that certain Citizens of Douglas County are acting in direct subversion of Law and Order, in preventing by threats and violent demonstrations the removal from the Territory of certain Texas Cattle "belonging to one Curtis who holds and acknowledges himself subject to any fines and penalties that may be legally pronounced against him for the violation of any law of our Territory:

This therefore is to counsel and admonish all good citizens not to prevent the removal of these animals from the borders of our Territory; and in further pursuance of my official duty, I do hereby urge the apprehension and punishment in manner provided by law, of each and every person guilty of bringing what are known as Texas Cattle" within the limits of this Territory, but at the same time caution all persons against the crime of taking the law into their own hands or interfering with or attempting to arrest the prosecution of any such cattle from the lawful owners.

The Executive authority will be exerted to any extent that may be necessary to enforce a full respect for the rights of property and obedience to law.
